Arbor Day plantings key on environment

By Bethanie Gengler
NEENAH NEWS

Lakeview Elementary students participated in Arbor Day events last Friday in both the city and town of Neenah, which included planting trees and learning about the environment.

In the town, fourth-graders cycled through four stations at Conservancy Park, learning about the pond, prairie, woodland and trees. The interactive sessions included facts about trees and their daily use including for cellulose, used in toothpaste and shampoo to make it thicker.

The event was spearheaded by Parks and Trails Committee chair Tom Jankowski. Volunteer educators at the stations included Jankowski's wife, Carri, committee member Tony Stanton, DNR forest health specialist Bill McNee and McMahon Engineers senior ecologist Stuart Boerst.

Boerst, who took part in designing the park, said the land had been a strawberry farm. Its prairie has more than 100 species of grasses and wildflowers that bloom from mid-May through November. The area is subject to a prescribed burn by the Town of Neenah Fire Department annually.

Boerst said the oak trees in Conservancy Park are a keystone species that will grow

Menasha Corp. legacy about values

Neenah company marks 175th year in business

By MaryBeth Matzek
NEWS CONTRIBUTOR

Innovation lies at the heart of the Menasha Corp.

Founded a year after Wisconsin became a state, the Menasha Corp. transformed from making wooden pails to state-of-the-art digital printing and providing customers with reusable packaging products.

Founded in 1849 and purchased by Elisha P. Smith in 1852, Menasha Corp. is on its seventh generation of family ownership, surviving the Civil War, the Great Depression, two World Wars, major fires including one that destroyed its corporate headquarters, a few near bankruptcies, major market shifts and a global pandemic.

"If you've been in business for 175 years, you are doing something right," said chief executive and president Chris Drees. He added it's the third oldest business in Wisconsin.

In February, Menasha Corp. was named the Manufacturer of the Year in the Mega Category.

"It was great to receive that in our 175th year of operation," Drees said.

Menasha Corp. is split into two divisions: Menasha Packaging and Orbis. The Neenah-based company employs 8,000 people at its locations throughout the United States and Canada.

Menasha Packaging is the nation's largest independent provider of retail-focused corrugated packaging and display solu-

Native American artifacts unearthed along city lakeshore

Remains will shed light on ancient cultures

By Bethanie Gengler
NEENAH NEWS

More than 1,000 Native American cultural features – arrowheads, pottery pieces, stone tools and fishing lures carved out of bone – were found by archaeologists along the western shore of Lake Winnebago during the Lakeshore Avenue trail extension project.

Archaeologists also unearthed an ancient Native American burial site, shedding light on centuries of cultural heritage and history.

Seth Schneider, principal investigator with University of Wisconsin Cultural Resource Management, gave a presentation last week on the findings excavated between August and November 2020.

That year the city began preparing for road work and trail construction in Kimberly Point Park along Lakeshore to Wisconsin Avenue, a one-acre stretch that triggered the archaeological component of the project.

In a half-mile area, researchers uncovered an extensive village beneath the street, estimated to have between 500-1,000 people during each given time period. The artifacts indicate occupation from 250 BC to AD 1650, representing the early, middle and late Woodland and Oneota occupations.

Schneider said the location was previously used for agriculture and had a road going through it. When the city constructed a new road on Lakeshore Avenue, they built on top of it.

"So what they did is basically just put down a layer of gravel, and then put the asphalt on top of it and then they just kept building up from there," he said. "So literally, this just encapsulated all the cultural materials underneath the roadbed. So they were undisturbed when we came through and did our investigations."

He added that in city landscapes, it's unusual to have cultural deposits preserved in such a way.

"Usually they've been disturbed pretty significantly," he said. "So this was a very

City attorney charged with sexual assault

NEENAH NEWS

Neenah city attorney David Rashid was charged in Winnebago County this week with sexually assaulting his ex-wife while they were married.

Rashid, 61, is facing two felony counts of third-degree sexual assault and a misdemeanor count of fourth-degree sexual assault, all with domestic abuse assessments.

According to the criminal complaint, the investigation began in August after the Neenah police chief and other local officials received an anonymous email accusing Rashid of abusing his ex-wife, who is not named in the complaint but referred to as Victim 1.

Documents say the case was referred to the Appleton Police Department, who interviewed the victim. The victim said she was unaware of who sent the email and did not consent to her personal information being shared. She initially refused to disclose information.

About a month later the victim contacted the investigator and accused Rashid of sexually assaulting her during incidents in 2017, 2020 and 2022. The couple were married in 2016 and the victim filed for divorce in July, which was finalized in January.

During one incident, documents say the victim told Rashid "I am not consenting to this" and he allegedly responded by stating he doesn't need consent because she gave consent on their wedding date.

Neenah Mayor Jane Lang issued a press release Wednesday that the city was made aware of the criminal complaint and Rashid has been placed on administrative leave pending a full review of the facts of the case.

Rashid began his employment with the city in August 2022, replacing Adam Westbrook, who resigned. Westbrook was recently charged in federal court with distribution of child pornography.

Rashid was a Winnebago County assistant district attorney when he was hired as Neenah's attorney. His criminal case has been assigned to a special prosecutor in Portage County.

Stamp Out Hunger effort set to deliver

Neenah News

Local mail carriers are preparing for the annual Stamp Out Hunger food drive May 11 in a national effort to restock area food banks.

Conducted by the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC), it is the largest one-day food drive in the country. Since 1991, mail carriers have been picking up and delivering nonperishable food items that residents place by their mailboxes.

Neenah mail carrier and NALC Branch 700 union president Dustin Clark said the Neenah Post Office serves about 30,000 customers.

Stamp Out Hunger and the Boy Scouts drive in March make up significant sources for food banks each year. Among the many local volunteer groups that help are the United Way, Salvation Army, Catholic Charities, National Guard units, veterans groups, Boy/Girl Scouts, Rotary clubs and AARP groups.

Clark, said co-workers take a personal interest in the food collection that serves customers they see every day.

The NALC's national effort to help fight hunger in America started with a pilot drive in 10 cities in 1991 that immediately expanded. In 2010, the drive surpassed the 1 billion pound mark in food collected over its history.

Contact a local letter carrier representative, email foaddrivesocial@nacl.org or Stamp Out Hunger on social media for more information.

Two St. Mary Catholic High School students have been recognized for their performances in the school's spring production of "Shrek, the Musical."

Jonah DeWitt received a nod in the Outstanding Performance in a Lead Role category from the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center's Center Stage High School Musical Theater Program for portraying Shrek.

Nominated for Outstanding Performance in a Supporting Role is sophomore Mary McCurdy for her portrayal of Mail theft ring brings prison sentence, bench warrant

Neenah News

One of two Chicago men charged in a string of mail thefts across northeast Wisconsin was sentenced Monday and the other is wanted on a bench warrant.

Dionta Bratcher, 29, was sentenced in Winnebago County to 18 months initial confinement and two years of extended supervision for a felony count of theft of 10 to 29 pieces of mail. He will serve the sentence concurrently with a Brown County sentence in two cases amounting to a total of two years in prison and three years of extended supervision. He was also sentenced in Manitowoc County last year to six months in jail.

Bratcher

Edwards

A Winnebago County judge issued a bench warrant in January for Derrell Edwards, 29, after he failed to appear for a sentencing hearing on a felony count of theft of 10 to 29 pieces of mail. He was sentenced last year in Manitowoc County to 90 days in jail and in Brown County to a combined total of two years in jail in two separate cases, with Huber work release.

His Huber privileges were revoked in December after escaping from the electronic monitoring program.

Bratcher and Edwards were convicted of stealing incoming and outgoing checks from mailboxes, which they altered, duplicated and fraudulently cashed using various bank accounts throughout the United States.

The total amount of stolen checks was more than $500,000.

The two men were arrested in Manitowoc County in February 2023 during a traffic stop that uncovered a significant amount of mail not addressed to them, including 61 checks written to businesses in Brown County with a total value of more than $120,000.

The vehicle's license plate matched that of a vehicle photographed stealing mail from businesses in Little Chute, and was believed to be connected to 16 pieces of mail taken from eight businesses in Fox Crossing that were recovered from a dumpster in Little Chute.

Both men are also accused of targeting businesses in the industrial park in Greenville in late 2022 but have not been charged in Outagamie County.

The Outagamie County Sheriff's Office said mail thefts continue to be an ongoing challenge and encouraged businesses to take extra steps to avoid falling victim.

Suggestions include taking checks directly to USPS collection locations, signing up for informed delivery through USPS, requesting that mail not be delivered on weekends, installing a USPS approved lockable mailbox and installing surveillance systems to deter criminal activity.

State judicial ethics panel rarely acts on complaints

Winnebago misconduct claims from 2023 pending

By Bethanie Gengler
NEENAH NEWS

When an attorney put a “LaKeisha Haase for Judge” campaign sign on his land in Omro last year, newly re-elected Winnebago County Circuit Judge Scott Woldt allegedly threatened to retaliate for supporting Woldt’s opponent, according to a complaint to the Wisconsin Judicial Ethics Commission (WJC).

Woldt was appointed to the Branch 2 bench in 2004 and subsequently elected to six-year terms in 2005, 2011, 2017 and most recently defeating Haase to retain his seat in a contentious election in 2023.

It wasn’t his first time being accused of misconduct. In 2021, the Wisconsin Supreme Court issued him a seven-day unpaid suspension for six incidents of misconduct from 2009-2016. Last year’s election was his first after being issued the sanction.

The WJC recently released its annual report detailing judicial misconduct investigation results, which may provide some insight into whether the commission found the newest allegations credible.

The report demonstrates that the majority of judges, justices and court commissioners accused of misconduct in Wisconsin rarely face serious repercussions.

Complaint process

Allegations of judicial misconduct are reviewed by the WJC panel, consisting of nine appointed members. It includes one judge from the Court of Appeals, a circuit court judge, two lawyers and five nonlawyer laypeople.

Complaints found to be within the WJC’s jurisdiction and “not patently frivolous or unfounded” are evaluated to determine whether they will be referred for investigation. Allegations not meeting the criteria are dismissed.

Once WJC concludes an investigation, it may dismiss the matter with no action, dismiss with expression of concern or warning, or file a complaint with the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court uses civil procedure to evaluate judicial misconduct and issue a final decision. Sanctions include reprimand, censure, suspension and removal from office.

A judicial misconduct suspension is uncommon, with only 15 judges suspended in the state in the past 45 years. Woldt is the only judge in Wisconsin suspended in the past three years.

Past misconduct

The Supreme Court sanctioned Woldt in 2021 for crude, sarcastic and undignified comments, intemperate remarks and twice displaying a handgun in the courtroom as a “prop.”

Among the incidents: calling a 13-year-old sexual assault survivor a “so-called victim,” while referring to her assailant as a “very smart man” with a low probability of re-offending, and chastising a domestic violence victim for requesting that her assailant be issued a fine and telling her not to contact police.

During a 2015 sentencing hearing for a developmentally disabled man, Woldt held up a handgun. The following year, he displayed a gun to a visiting group of high school students.

The Supreme Court wrote that five of the incidents occurred in just under a year and showed an “aggravating pattern of misconduct” requiring an unpaid suspension “to impress upon Judge Woldt the seriousness of his misconduct and the need for him to change how he treats the jurors, lawyers, litigants, witnesses, victims and staff with whom he interacts.”

Attorney complaints

Matthew Goldin has been a practicing attorney for 33 years and has an office in Oshkosh. He filed a formal request for investigation with the WJC last year, accusing Woldt of misconduct.

Goldin wrote that a week after Woldt was re-elected he was on the bench speaking to a group of students visiting his courtroom when he made comments “essentially scolding” the attorney for supporting Haase in the election.

The more serious incident took place two weeks later during a social event at an Oshkosh establishment and was witnessed by two other attorneys, including one who confirmed to media she was first accosted by Woldt before he accosted Goldin.

Goldin wrote that during the event Woldt pulled him over and said the attorney was “dead to him” for putting a Haase campaign sign on his property and threatened to use his judicial power to punish the attorney, his clients and practice “for some sort of perceived entitlement to loyalty” unless Goldin paid him $28,000 for the contested election.

Campaign finance records show Woldt’s re-election committee dispersed $27,218 in last year’s spring election. Under Wisconsin law, a judicial candidate may not personally solicit or accept campaign contributions and judges are prohibited from accepting gifts, favors or loans from attorneys if they have come or are likely to come before the judge.

The code of judicial conduct also states that a judge, candidate for judicial office, or judge-elect “should not manifest bias or prejudice inappropriate to the judicial office. Every judge, candidate for judicial office, or judge-elect should always bear in mind the need for scrupulous adherence to the rules of fair play while engaged in a campaign for judicial office.”

Judicial complaints are not released publicly until the commission has found probable cause to make a recommendation to the Supreme Court. The complaint against Woldt became a public record last April when it was filed as an exhibit in a motion to have him substituted in a case he was presiding over, where Goldin was representing the defendant.

The WJC in its yearly report wrote “the mere filing of a request for investigation does not entitle a complainant to the assignment of a different judicial official to hear a case.” Woldt recused himself from the case one day after the misconduct complaint was filed.

A review of Winnebago County Circuit Court records indicate Woldt is no longer presiding over cases where Goldin is the attorney of record, with all Goldin’s cases referred to other circuit court branches.

WJC 2023 annual report

Goldin’s complaint was one of 664 initial inquiries WJC received last year, of which it evaluated 42 requests for investigation and authorized eight investigations – about 1% of the total inquiries received.

Of the 42 requests evaluated, about 76% were involving circuit court judges. The vast majority were submitted by litigants, with only seven attorney complaints reviewed.

Allegations included demeanor/injudicious temperament, partiality/bias/prejudice, abuse of power, improper extra-judicial activity, improper political or campaign activity and misuse of prestige of judicial office, among others.

WJC concluded its eight investigations last year without filing any complaints with the Supreme Court. Two cases were dismissed with no action and six were dismissed with expression of concern or warning.

While it’s uncertain whether the complaint against Woldt was one of those dismissed with concern or warning, his conduct matches some of the behavior that the commission wrote was exhibited by judicial officials who were the subjects of dismissal.

WJC dismissed, with concern or warning, complaints including improper courtroom demeanor, bias, improper campaign activity and improper political activity.

Over the past five years, about 1% of the 4,211 initial misconduct inquiries WJC received were authorized for investigations and two complaints were filed in the Supreme Court, amounting to half of a percent of the five-year inquiry total.

Neenah-based Menasha Corp. marks its 175th anniversary.

perboard, glass and other materials in the early 1900s and in 1927, Menasha entered the corrugated box business. A few years later, it acquired a New Jersey-based company specializing in pressure-sensitive and heat-seal labels, creating new markets for the company.

In 1955, Menasha invested in the plastics sector by acquiring G.B. Lewis, a manufacturer of plastics. The company opened the only industry plant dedicated to making plastic pallets in 1973.

Menasha moved its corporate headquarters to Neenah just off U.S. 41 in 1967.

Through acquisitions in the early 2000s, Menasha entered the food market with folding cartons for in-store bakeries and delis and modular display cartons used in the confectionery industry.

During the 2010s, multiple acquisitions took Menasha into new sectors and markets, including contract packaging fulfillment and promotional print services. It also purchased a company in Ontario as the company entered the Canadian market.

In 2022, Menasha launched the Menasha Omnihub Network to help brands connect their omnichannel experience with seamless, multichannel execution for stores and online from one facility so its clients can meet its customers where they are.

Community giving

Smith wanted to give back to the community that allowed his business to succeed and donated a 25-acre parcel to create Smith Park in 1897 on Doty Island and also donated funds to build Menasha's library, the Elisha D. Smith Public Library, which celebrated its 125th anniversary in 2021.

His giving spirit reverberates in the company today, which has its own foundation – Menasha Corporation Foundation. The company donates at least $300,000 each year to the foundation.

The foundation makes grants in four areas: basic needs for safe living, food and health care; education; arts and cultural activities; and environmental sustainability. The company also encourages its employees to volunteer and also makes matching donations to nonprofits that its employees support.

"We support charitable organizations in every community we do business in. It's something that is very important to us," Drees said.

The Smith family remains at the heart of Menasha Corp. – Elisha's descendants remain majority owners and involved with the company. Earlier this year, Michael K. Waite, married to Julia Shepard Waite, a fifth-generation descendant of Elisha, was named board chairman.

Looking forward

Menasha is currently investing in updating equipment for both Menasha Packaging and Orbis. At Menasha Packaging, new digital die-cutting machines and digital printers are being installed while Orbis' injectable molding equipment is being updated.

"Innovation is essential for us and we are investing in exciting innovations," Drees said. "We are fortunate to have excellent shareholders who believe in what we're doing and willing to invest in us."

The company is already using AI in several areas, including crowdsourcing design information, and continues to look for other ways to use the technology, Drees said.

"We continue to pay attention to the latest technology and trends to make sure we stay on the cutting edge of what is out there," he said.

Menasha Corp.'s people-first culture can be traced back to founder Smith, who was interested in getting to know his employees and often had multiple generations of the same family employed.

"We have great people at Menasha and we keep the focus on them," Drees said. "People make the company. For Menasha to be successful, our employees need to be successful."

Besides taking care of its employees, Menasha is also committed to taking care of the world around them through its sustainability initiatives. This year, Menasha Packaging hopes to produce 99% recyclable materials.

"We're relentless when it comes to delivering sustainable solutions that embody reuse, recyclability and waste reduction," Drees said.

Menasha Packaging and Orbis have committed to reducing its water use by 10%, landfill waste by 10% and total emissions by 10% by 2030 as part of its 30 by 30 goal initiative.

"We drive sustainability every day in what we do," Drees said. "It's an essential part of our business. Sustainable initiatives will help us be here for the next 175 years."

good opportunity to learn about pre-contact Native American village sites along Lake Winnebago in this area.”

Archaeologists documented, photographed, cleaned and cleared cultural features in areas along the site. The artifacts, notes and documentation from the archaeological recovery efforts are curated at the Oshkosh Public Museum.

From the north end of the project area to Wheeler Street, seven potential housing structures were identified. A report on the findings notes there are likely additional structures at the site, especially near the Bergstrom-Mahler Museum and at the south end by Wisconsin Avenue.

Hearths, fire-cracked rock and limestone platforms used for roasting and boiling water were among the deposits. Kernels, corn cobs and husks were preserved between rocks in storage refuse pits. An antler tine from a deer that may have been used for digging, a serrated clam shell that was possibly a comb, bone pendants, bone and copper awls and projectile points were among the items uncovered.

At one point during the mitigation process human remains were encountered and a burial was identified, which triggered Wisconsin’s burial sites law.

Native American ancestral remains of 28 people including adults, young adults, juveniles and young children were found in 23 locations. The remains of 17 people were interred in place and the others were carefully disinterred and reinterred between Lakeshore Avenue and Lake Winnebago.

Archaeologists previously uncovered other Native American artifacts and remains along Lake Winnebago including in Davis Point, Winnebago Rapids, the site of Neenah Waterworks and on the southern shore of Doty Island. A similar archaeological excavation is currently underway in Oshkosh after artifacts were discovered while constructing Pratt Trail in Menominee Park.

For centuries, indigenous burial sites have been subject to looting, desecration and destruction. Under state law, the designation of Lakeshore Avenue as a burial site prohibits metal detector use and digging. The city also enacted an ordinance prohibiting the use of metal detectors at Kimberly Point Park or along Lakeshore Avenue, preserving and protecting the sacred site.

A report noted Wisconsin archaeologists have long recognized the difficulty of connecting cultures to known Native American nations and tribes. The interments are “almost certainly” related to the original inhabitants of Wisconsin, according to the report. The area falls within the territory known historically as Ho-Chunk, but a relationship to the Menominee could not be discounted.

Historically, the area looked quite different than it does today. Schneider said before European contact was made and dams put in, Lake Winnebago was 2 to 3 feet higher. He said it would be a wild rice patch as far as the eye could see, with an open channel in the middle.

Schneider said that given the previous investigations of the Kimberly Point peninsula, the entire stretch from both sides of Lake Winnebago to the Fox River shoreline may be one large pre-contact site, meaning it was inhabited by Native Americans in the time before indigenous people had contact with an outside culture.

to have a 60-foot span with roots as wide as the crown and support 600 species of caterpillars, moths and butterflies, which serve as food for birds.

McNee said that up until two years ago the park supported ash trees but due to the invasive emerald ash borer, many were removed. He told the students that Arbor Day is intended to celebrate trees and their benefits.

The students donated about 40 trees that will go into parks in the Town of Neenah and another 40 trees were sent home with students. Each class planted one tree during the event.

In the city, Lakeview third-graders read poems and took part in planting a bur oak tree in Kimberly Point Park, with superintendent of parks Trevor Fink, Mayor Jane Lang and McNee participating.

The Parks & Recreation Commission wrote on social media that the planting was of special significance as it was in honor of Lee Hillstrom who has been a member of the commission for 20 years.

Rockets' Dietrich aims for third state trip this school year

Neenah News

Neenah High School senior Rachel Dietrich has already competed at the state cross country meet and state basketball tournament this school year and now looks to make a return trip to the state track and field meet.

By Steve Clark
NEENAH NEWS

The dream for high school athletes is to finish their seasons at the state-level of competition.

To finish a season – or for seniors, their high school careers – competing against the best the state has to offer in that given sport is something pretty special.

Neenah's Rachel Dietrich hopes that's the case for all three seasons this year.

After having already competed at the state cross country meet on a Rocket team that took second and being a starter on the state runner-up girls basketball team, Dietrich hopes to complete the trifecta later this month and return to the state track and field meet in La Crosse.

"I wasn't really thinking about it before the year but it's a crazy feeling," Dietrich said. "For both cross country and basketball, it is such a great team atmosphere and the same with track. We're a team and we push each other every day and it's great to see results like that."

Dietrich ran on the Rockets' state-qualifying 1,600-meter and 3,200-meter relay teams last season and is part of strong four-somes in those events this year.

She is also looking to qualify in the 800 meters, an event that she won a regional title in last year but was disqualified at the sectional race.

"Hopefully getting to state in all of our relays and getting to state in the open 800 as well. Winning conference, that would be cool as well," Dietrich said. "I wouldn't say I feel any pressure this year. I think I am more confident going into this year that our relays can get back there and do well this year."

If she is able to advance to the state meet, it will only be her second time competing in La Crosse. She didn't qualify as a freshman or a sophomore because she wasn't even running track in those years.

Dietrich opted to play soccer her first two years of high school before making the switch to track and field.

"I just thought it would be fun and I thought I had some potential to do well in track. I like running and I wanted to try it out," Dietrich said. "I feel like there was always people making jokes about coming to do track, but it was more (my decision). I wanted to try something new."

Upon her arrival, it didn't take long to find her a race she liked either.

"The 800 just seemed like a good distance for me and ever since I tried it it's been a good race for me," Dietrich said. "The 800 is fun. I like it. It's two quick laps so it's like a sprint and I like sprinting. It's the perfect distance. It's not too long, not too short."

It didn't take Dietrich long to adjust to feel comfortable running and was surprised by the success that followed.

She didn't start the season expecting to make it to the state meet but certainly contributed to both relay teams that advanced.

"I was pretty shocked. It went better than I thought it would," Dietrich said. "But we put together some good relays and I started to think we might make it out of sectionals."

As much as she likes running, Dietrich's love of running cross country is a bit tempered.

Although she was a varsity runner all

Saringer fuels key victory for Zephyrs

By Dustin Riese
NEWS CONTRIBUTOR

Nevaeh Saringer the hitter provided Nevaeh Saringer the pitcher a little boost for St. Mary Catholic on Monday night.

Saringer went 2-for-3 and opened the scoring with a solo home run in the second inning while pitching six strong innings to lead the Zephyrs to a 4-1 win over Elkhart Lake-Glenbeulah in a key Big East North matchup.

Both teams are part of a logjam in a battle for second place behind league-leading Mishicot. The St. Mary Catholic win brought the two teams even at 3-4 in conference play, tied with Hilbert for third place in the standings with all three teams trailing Reedsville by a game.

"I think the girls came out very strong and were ready to attack right away," head coach Jennifer Rodman said. "We knew this was a big conference game for us and the girls were ready to go right from the jump."

After taking a 1-0 lead on Saringer's blast in the second inning, the Zephyrs added another run in the third.

Adel Schneider's single up the middle was followed by an RBI-triple to center field by Rhiannon Reichenbacher and St. Mary Catholic had a 2-0 lead.

"Early on, we did a lot of popping up on the first pitch," Rodman said. "We talked about that a little bit and discussed making sure you swing at your pitch. As the game went on, the girls did a better job of seeing more pitches, making better contact and just driving the ball all over the field."

Reichenbacher added another RBI with a groundout in the fifth inning, while Emily Vogel drove in a run with a double later in the frame for a 4-0 lead.

The Resorters answered in the top of the sixth with their lone run, but that was all Elkhart Lake-Glenbeulah could manage.

Saringer scattered five hits and a walk while striking out three in her six innings of work. Reichenbacher struck out two in pitching a scoreless seventh inning to close out the win.

Schneider also finished with two hits in the game for the Zephyrs and scored two runs.

"Our main focus right now is to keep improving from one game to the next," Rodman said. "We had a great weekend against a D2 team in Monroe that seems to have us trending in the right direction. I feel we are starting to peak at the right time, but we need to continue making the plays in the field that we need to make and staying aggressive in the box. The best part of where we are right now is that I feel we still have some growth still coming and that only bodes well for the rest of the season."

Neenah tops Kimberly to stay perfect

By Dustin Riese
NEWS CONTRIBUTOR

The beat goes on for the Neenah boys lacrosse team as they pushed their record to 7-0 Tuesday night.

Entering the game ranked No. 2 in the Wisconsin state lacrosse rankings, the Rockets wasted no time sending a message to Kimberly as they struck for five first-period goals before cruising to the 10-6 victory.

"We fought through some poor officiating and some bad decisions to pick up this win," head coach Eric Marsh said. "We never felt that this game was in jeopardy, but if we want to make a run at the state title late this season we need to clean up some small details."

It took just over one minute for the Rockets to break through with Jack Meixl connecting for the first of his two goals in the game. The Rockets scored three times in the first five minutes to take a commanding lead.

Owen Grotenhuis contributed to the fast start with a pair of goals and led the Rocket offense with four goals on the night.

The Rockets added another goal before halftime to take a 6-2 lead, with Marsh crediting the defense for stifling the Papermakers.

"I thought our defense played tough

TRACK AND FIELD

Neenah teams third at FVA relays

Both the Neenah girls and boys track teams finished third at the Fox Valley Association relays held at Kimberly on Tuesday.

The girls won two relay events on the night with the foursome of Lilly Granditzke, Rachel Dietrich, Ava Schalow and Celia Gentile finishing first in the 1,600 meter relay and the team of Lexi Dorner, Dietrich, Eme Olkowski and Mazie Olkowski winning the distance medley relay.

Neenah was also second in the sprint medley relay and third in the 400-meter relay, the throwers 400-meter relay, the 800-meter relay and the 3,200-meter relay.

Individually, Gentile finished first in the long jump, Elsa Gruber took second in the 1,600 meters and Bella Chandik was third in the 100-meter hurdles.

The boys also won two relays at the meet. Braden Loudon, Matt Machacek, Alex Thayer and Owen Wise won the 1,600-meter relay and the team of Bly Wheeler, Wise, Thayer and Wyatt Armock won the distance medley relay.

Neenah was also third in the throwers 400-meter relay and in the 3,200-meter relay.

In the individual events, Oliver Steiner in the 1,600 meters and Will Radies in the triple jump were each second, while Ben Donaldson took third in the 300-meter hurdles.

On Friday, Neenah participated in the weather-shortened Neenah Invitational. The boys were led by Armock, who took first in the 1,600, while Sam Scheer was second in the discus and Radies was third in both the long jump and triple jump. Neenah also took third in the 3,200-meter relay.

For the girls, Lydia Delene won the shot put and Celia Gentile won the long jump. Eme Olkowski and Natalie Schultz took second and fourth, respectively, in the 1,600 meters, while Bella Chadik was third in the 100-meter hurdles and Myah Wenzel was fifth in the shot put. The Rockets also won the 3,200-meter relay.

Also on Friday, Dietrich took second in the 800 meters and Mazie Olkowski was third in the 3,200 meters at the West Allis Hale Distance Night meet.

season for Neenah - she ended up filling the seventh spot for the state team last fall - bounding through woodlands and across uneven terrain isn't really her cup of tea.

"Cross country is tough. I don't care for running that far," Dietrich said. "The 800, I like it because is fast and you can see the whole course."

Dietrich was a key member of Neenah's basketball team taking on the role as the team's defensive stopper while averaging about five points per game.

Yet, the enjoyment she took from that season wasn't about her statistics or what she did on the court, it was about getting the chance to play with lifelong friends.

"It was awesome. Especially since we had eight seniors on that team and we had been playing together since we were so young. It was awesome to maximize our last season together, playing and lasting as long as we did," Dietrich said. "It was tough (losing in the state finals). I left my jersey on until I got home. I didn't take it off after the game."

Now Dietrich is focused on track and is having another strong season for the Rockets.

She also has set her plans for the future and will run track on scholarship at Northern Illinois next season but first hopes to complete a successful run with the Rockets.

"I wouldn't say getting on the podium would define the success of a state meet but it would obviously be awesome to get on a podium," Dietrich said. "But if I don't and I run a good time, that's still a great success."

and fought through a lot of adversity all game," Marsh said. "Even when it looked as if Kimberly was starting to get some momentum going on their side, (goal-tender Jack) Romsos stood tall and made some great saves to keep us in front."

Both teams added four goals to their total in the second half as Neenah was able to keep the Papermakers at bay.

Keane Sullivan also scored twice in the game for Neenah, while Ben Carey and Evan Hans had a goal apiece.

"Our boys know this wasn't their best game," Marsh said. "Even then, we are still able to pull out convincing wins, which is a testament to the amount of work these boys put in. Jackson Brown gave me a great quote when we were talking in a timeout as he said, 'I don't care who scores the goals; no one cares.'"

"The beauty of this team is that no one cares about the spotlight. All we want to do is bring it home in the end and we want to win as a team."

Buddy B. Beaver's Goals

Buddy shows us how to reach a big goal by breaking it down into smaller steps.

Be Like Buddy: How to Reach a Goal

Sometimes there are things you want in life that are not possible right now. For example, maybe you want to buy something that is expensive. If you are serious about that purchase, make buying it a goal.

In order to reach that goal, be like Buddy. Make a list of small steps or small goals that would help you reach your big goal.

EXAMPLE: Angie wants to buy a new coat. The coat costs $50.

Angie decides that instead of trying to earn $50 all at once, she will make ten goals that will help her reach her big goal. She makes a goal of earning $5. If she earns $5 ten times, she will reach her big goal of $50!

Extra! Extra! Busy Builders

Beavers are builders. Look through the newspaper for examples of things people build. What are the kinds of jobs people do to build things?

Standards Link: Use the newspaper to locate information.

ANGIE'S GOAL: Earn $50 for a new coat!

- Mowed the lawn: $3.00
- Made my bed: $0 (Mom expects me to do this every morning!)
- Walked the dog: $2.00
- Took out the trash: $1.00
- Did the dishes: $2.00

How can Angie earn $5? Put a check in the box next to each of Angie's jobs. If you checked the right boxes, they add up to exactly $5.

If Angie can earn $5 per week and save the money, how long until she will have enough money to buy the coat?

MY GOAL: _____

JOB I CAN DO TO EARN THE MONEY:	HOW MUCH I CAN EARN:
_____	$ _____
_____	$ _____
_____	$ _____
